

PROM THE SOUTHERN LITERARY MESSENGER. BE GLAD WHILE YET YOU MAY. Addressed to an interesting little boy at play.

BT H. M. G. Jr. Bound, bound away, beautiful boy! Bound in thy joy away! Ring out thy voice to hill and glen,-Be glad while yet you may.

Laugh to the light winds hurrying on Upon their viewless way: They'll never fan thee younger, boy! Be glad while yet you may.

Speed for the restless butterfly, From shrub to floweret gay: Shout to the wild-bird hastening by,-Be glad while yet you may.

Go where the notes of music ring Out in their mingling play: Leap to their wild and joyous sound,-Be glad while yet you may.

Hie to the gushing stream, and through The livelong summer-day, Wanton its sparkling waves among-Be glad while yet you may.

The days roll on, when joys like these Thy heart no more can sway: Woe! for the sorrowful hours then! Be glad while yet you may. New Glasgow, Va.

AGRICULTURAL.

FROM THE BALTIMORE FARMER. ON THE CULTURE OF RUTA BAGA.

Mr. James M. Lawton, in a communication in the Cultivator, gives the following rules for the preparation of the soil, and the culture of the ruta baga. The conclusions at which he arrives are the result of many years experience and close observation. 1. The land, he says, properly adapted to the nature of the plant, is a strong loam. 2. The land should be ploughed early in the spring, in order that the sward, if it have one, may rot by the 10th of June.

3. The land should be made perfectly mellow and smooth, and a coat of good manure that is fine, say sheep or barn yard manure, should be put on. 4. Throw the land into ridges, twenty-four inches apart, with a small horse plough. 5. Roll down the ridges by a light roller, or other instrument; make a light furrow, say an inch deep, drill in the seed, on or about the 15th of June: and when the seed comes up, all but one plant should be pulled son, that is, keep the weeds out, and the are New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and latearth stirred about the plants; as they are terly, Indiana, Illinois, and Michigan; Virafterwards also, when they receive the two prices for the last forty-four years:

Mr. Lawton further adds that he has found the above rules, when closely followed, never to fail in producing a good crop; this hast year he raised from 90 rods, that is from half an acre and ten perches of land, 605 bushels of sound, close-grained ruta baga turnips, on land a distance from the house or barn, on which, never to his knowledge, a spoonful of manure had been placed, until within a few days of the time he put the seed in the ground. This product was equal to 1075 5-9 bushels to the acre. The success of Mr. Lawton should surely serve to stimulate every farmer and planter to appropriate at least an acre or two to the culture of this excellent and hardy root. Unlike the other members of the turnip family, it will preserve through the hardest winter in the field, if the precaution be taken to throw a furrow up against the rows, just as the hard frosts set in, and may be drawn thence for use, as occasion may suit. They are also more firm in meat, and more nutritious than any other turnip. Horses and cows that feed upon them do not scour, as when kept on the other varieties.

APPLES.

It is maintained that the value of sweet apples over roots, for feeding stock, is rapidly becoming known; that they may be raised to give reasonable return on land and labor, at a half cent a bushel, while the root crop, by the cheapest mode of culture, will cost ten times as much, or five cents a bushel; that they are particularly adapted (sweet apples) to fattening hogs. It is even predicted with confidence, that in a few years apples will be esteemed second only to the wheat crop. The writer says molasses is obtained from the juice of sweet apples, by evaporating the cider in its freshest state, of good quality, cheaper than can be bought, and he further insists that sugar will ultimately be extracted from sweet apples cheaper than from beets, which it will supercede. on account of the trifling labor in producing one, and the constant labor in producing the other. The writer urges the importance of careful selection of the kind to be planted; he adds, that with far more expensive food than apples, at half cent a bushel, some far- tural history, inhabiting the dark glens among mers that make large profits on their pork, the rocky mountains. It is described as being interesting fact:

setts, a remarkably successful farmer, makes dress is said to be a flowing robe of wool it is said, some three thousand or four thou- white as ermine, and his motion as nimble ets the proceeds as clear profit. He makes his hogs pay their way up to the time of slaughtering, in the manure he gets from the

Can any man tell the breed of his hogs, bred altogether by chance? In process of time the best points of the animal are bred out, and the worst retained; not one man or manager in a thousand can tell when a cow, sheep, or hog is to increase its stock, thus they bring forth their young at an unseasonable and uneconomical time of the year .- American Farmer.

THE MOUNT VERNON FARMER.

The fame of General Washington as a soldier and a statesman is universally known and highly admired by all who appreciate talents, worth, and love of country; but his character as a farmer was less known in his day, and his memory in this respect, is not venerated according to its desert. Possessing ample means, and the most ardent love of rural life, he was one of the first experimental and practical farmers in Virginia .-His estate at Mount Vernon of 10,000 acres of land, in one body, equal to about 15 square miles. It was divided into farms of convenient size, at the distance of 2, 3, 4 and 5 miles from his mansion house. These farms he visited every day in pleasant weather, and was constantly engaged in making experiments for the improvement of agricul-

Some idea of the extent of his farming operations may be formed from the following fact: in 1787, he had 500 acres in grasssowed 600 bushels of oats-700 acres with wheat, and prepared as much more for corn, barley, potatoes, beans, peas, &c. and 150 with turnips. His stock consisted of 140 horses, 112 cows, 235 working oxen, heifers, and steers, and 500 sheep. He constantly Tyrol employed 250 hands, and kept 24 ploughs Saxon going the whole year, when the earth and the state of the weather would permit. In 1786 he slaughtered 150 hogs, weighing 18,560 pounds, for the use of his family, besides provisions for his negroes.

Toads.—It is a common notion that these beautiful little animals suck poison from the earth. Now although this opinion is a fallacy, the toad is, nevertheless, one of the most useful animals in the world to the gardener. The toad lives entirely on animal food, eats it alive, and cares not a fig for Dr. Graham. The grubs and insects which he devours are very injurious to the young plants which are cultivated for the table.-He comes out at night when the dampness of the air is agreeable to him, and when his prey are likewise wandering abroad, com mitting their depredations, and watches them as eagerly as a cat watches for mice. It is said that a few dozen of toads will destroy all the cabbage worms in a whole acre of land that is planted with cabbages, and be the means of saving the young plants from destruction .- Boston Paper.
